Five Romulus Police Officers, Two Dispatchers Honored

By Evelyn H. Atkins, Editor

On Thursday, February 27, 1992, five Romulus police officers and two dispatchers were honored in a special awards ceremony recognizing them for their years of service and their superior performance on an annual written exam which tested their professional knowledge in various areas.

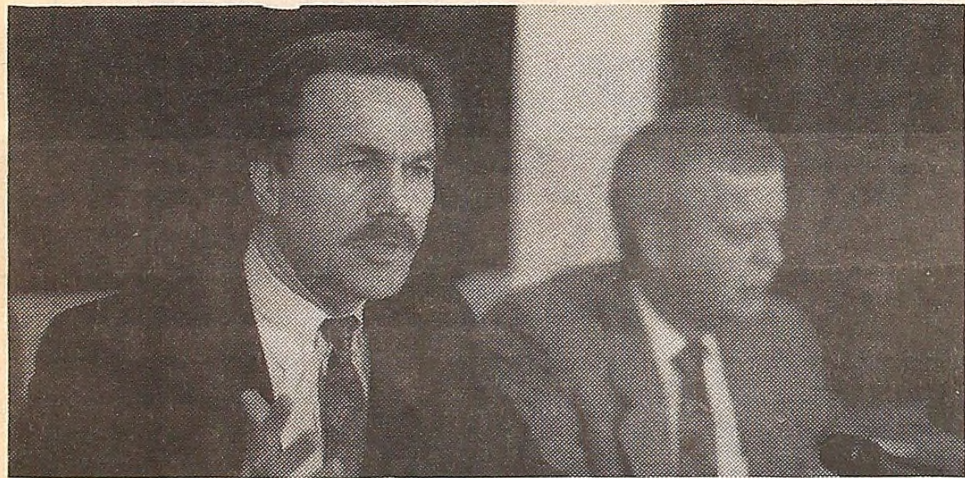

The seven honorees were Officer Michael Coffey, Officer Tim O'Neil, Sergeant Michael Ondejko, Officer Rick Schwartz, Officer John Smagner, Dispatcher Ed Klimaszewski, and Dispatcher George Sparr. In recognition of their achievement, each received special gold insignia (as opposed to the standard silver insignia) for his uniform, and each will draw extra pay.

Officiating at the special ceremony, which was held in the Police Department's conference room, were Romulus Police Chief Fred Dansby and Lieutenant Eric Painter. □

State Representative Kosteva Sponsors New MET Legislation

Democratic House leaders recently announced legislation, sponsored by State Representative James A. Kosteva (D-Canton), that would mandate an annual enrollment period for Michigan Education Trust (MET) contracts and allow rates for the prepaid tuition contracts to be set no higher than the average percentage tuition increase of Michigan's public college and universities during each enrollment period.

"MET was designed to help ensure that middle-class families can afford higher education for their children," said Representative Kosteva, a member of the House Education Committee who sponsored the legislation that created MET in 1988. "By purchasing a MET contract, families can put aside money now to help their sons and daughters get an education at a public two-year or four-year institution, or even at a private college or university.

"But, despite the proven success of the program and the fact that recent audits show a $20-million surplus in the fund, the Engler administration seems determined to shut it down. My bill would ensure that Michigan families who want to invest in a MET contract will have a chance to do so every year, and that the rates for the contract will reflect actual tuition conditions."

"Because it is a successful Blanchard-era program, Governor Engler is willing to let MET lapse," said House Speaker Lewis N. Dodak, "despite the financial and educational benefits it offers working families who want their children to get the best education they can."

"The MET program has so far enrolled 55,000 young people who will draw on it for their college or university expenses," said Representative Pat Gagliardi (D-Drummond Island), House majority leader and sponsor of legislation to cap

Berman Seeks To Ban Ma Bell's Caller I.D. in Michigan

"Your phone number is no longer your own," warns State Representative Maxine Berman (D-Southfield), who recently announced that she will introduce legislation to ban Michigan Bell's Caller I.D. service in Michigan.

Michigan Bell has begun selling its new service to any customer requesting it. The service is used in conjunction with a special receiver which is (or will be) available at many retail stores, or through a special vendor servicing Michigan Bell customers. Those who purchase the service and the receiver will be able to see the phone number of persons calling them. According to one Michigan Bell employee, the service costs $6.50 per month for the first 300 calls displayed, and two cents per call for each additional call displayed.

In defense of the service, Michigan Bell says that callers who want to keep their numbers private can punch a three-digit code (star-six-seven) before each call.

"That's asking a lot," said Representative Berman. "A great number of people, particularly the handicapped and many seniors, have difficulty in dialing now. This will add to that burden. Those people and anyone else who want to keep their phone numbers private should have the right to do so without punching in extra codes."

Berman also pointed out that many large concerns are hooked up to other large data banks, and that your phone number will automatically give them access to such information as your income, credit history, marital status, etc.

"This product is being promoted as information for the consumer; it is, instead, information about the consumer," she declared.

Berman's bill allows Caller I.D. only when both caller and receiver consent. The bill exempts Federal, State, or local law-enforcement agencies, fire departments, and medical-care emergency services. □ tuition increases to the rate of inflation. "We have more than 1,000 students enrolled in Michigan colleges and universities today who are benefiting from the MET contracts their families bought for them. It would be foolish and discriminatory to allow this solid program to become the victim of the current governor's purge of his predecessor's programs."

"Tuition in our higher institutions of learning has increased 105% over the past decade," said Rep. Morris Hood Jr. (D-Detroit), chair of the House appropriations subcommittee on higher education. "A prepaid tuition contract would shield families from the worst kind of financial stress that these increases bring. Anyone who agrees that a college or university education ought to be affordable for every youngster who has the ability to attain it, will join the effort to preserve MET now and for the future." □

"A Time Gone By . . ."

By Mary Lange Foley

Have you driven down Olive Street in Romulus lately? If you were raised in this community as I was, chances are that you spent at least a part of your life in the "old South" Romulus Junior High School building on Olive.

Although I no longer live in Romulus (my family moved to the Belleville area over 16 years ago), that doesn't stop me from returning to my old hometown! Much of my life is still here. I drive past that old building at least once or twice a week. All those years we saw our beloved school sitting empty and alone. We take so many things in life for granted.

That old building housed so many generations of Romulus families. I graduated from Romulus High School in 1968; a few family members of my parents' generation graduated there in the '40s and '50s, and I know that many more graduated from the school even before then. (It was their high school at the time.) I'm sure that they have their own memories of the school; I know that I have mine!

How I loved attending school there. I was young (probably 13 to 15 years old), attending seventh, eighth, and ninth grade. Yes, at that time, the freshman class was still considered "junior high," and it was probably my best year of school ever.

We walked through those doors for the first time as scared, shy, protected babies who had just completed elementary school. As seventh-graders, we grew physically, mentally, emotionally, and socially.

That building was more than bricks and mortar — much more! It was there that we began to learn about our world, beyond the protective arms of family and home. We took our first steps of independence there. It was the site of our first dances, plays (remember that beautiful old stage?), sporting events (I was never into the gym scene; running that old track could still give a person nightmares!) . . . I remember music lessons in elementary school, but, at the Junior High, we actually became an orchestra! My music teacher was Mr. Larson. I wonder what ever became of him? What a dear man! Mrs. Joan Chesler was my Social Living and English teacher. She had probably the greatest influence on my life that any teacher could have! Unfortunately, I've lost track of her through the years, too.

I remember that the gym and the tunnel were pretty scary places early on. The basement cafeteria . . . those places are all tucked away in my memory.

Our old home is gone now. I watched it bulldozed down, room by room. How sad it was for me to see it go! I know that it's another time now. My own son has gone on to graduate from high school, and now he's begun his college days. I

Further Problems

By Tom Shamanski

"Joe!" I cried, "Quit running around like a little kid!"

"He is a little kid, Dad," said Meredith, my seven-year-old encyclopedia.

"Oh, gosh; that's right," I sighed. At that point, I knew that there was only one logical thing left to do.

"Joe, settle down and I'll give you some candy."

"Nice, Dad, nice," grinned Meredith, cutting off her own supply of candy.

It was two days before Joe's fifth birthday — however, we weren't at my mom's and sister's house preparing for a birthday dinner, as is our custom. Instead, we were in a hospital lobby. I was recovering from a short illness, but was able to maneuver a wheelchair down to the lobby to see the kids. My sister, Judy The Boss, had brought them up, and we were in the midst of having our own little birthday party.

* * *

"Let me push you in the wheelchair, Daddy, okay? I'll be careful — honest," said Joe.

Chuckling and fluffing his fine, blond hair, I said, "Maybe later, Buddy, maybe later." Then, an idea: "Of course, you've got to be a good boy before I'd let you do that, Joe."

"Oh, I will be, Daddy, you know I will be."

Well, I figured, that should take care of any problems with Joe for the rest of the visit. I knew that he'd be good now for a chance to push me in my chair later. Having spotted a large, overhead TV, he quickly popped off to a corner of the room.

Looking toward The Boss, I smiled, "I guess I took care of Joe pretty good, huh?"

"Don't be so sure, Fuzzbrain. I'm telling you, he's a real alarm clock today."

"No problem; I've got it all under control."

Soon, Meredith came bouncing up to me. She had been browsing in the bookstore. I plucked her up and set her on my lap.

"So, how's my most favorite girl-kid in the whole, wide world?" I asked.

Grinning a big one, she said, "Oh, I'm fine, Dad, you know that. When are you going to get out of the hospital?"

"Pretty soon, Honey; a few more days."

"Good." Then, she paused the pause that I had come to dread.

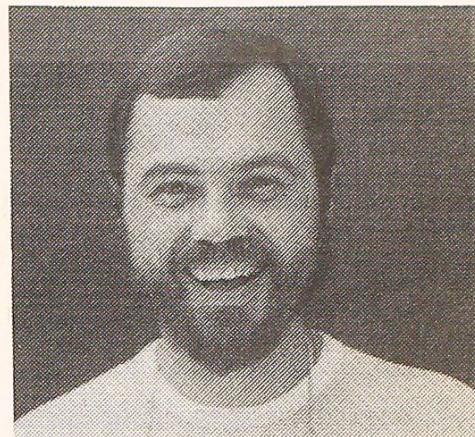

Finally, looking up at me, she furrowed her brow and said, "Did you know that seven-eighths of the U.S. population lives within three minutes of a McDonald's?"

"Nooo . . . so what?"

"Well, what does that tell you, Dad?"

"You can get a Bic Mac faster than a Whopper?"

"No. But it's a good indication of why the American diet is so nutritiously poor. With a McD's so close to each and every home, it's no wonder that so many people opt for fast food rather than cook something worthwhile at home."

"Hmmm, you may be on to something there, Kid. Keep workin' on it."

Just then, Joe ran by us so quickly that I feared a sonic boom. Not wanting him to cause anything that would disturb other patients, I screamed, "Get back here, JOSEPH!"

Still flying, he glanced back and cried, "Just call me Joe, Daddy!"

"COME HERE, JOE!" . . . Thankfully, he did.

"Hi, Daddy. Can I push you in your wheelchair now? Huh? Can I?"

When I opened my mouth to speak, only a squeaky, mouse-like sound came out; I nodded.

"He hasn't been good, you know," said The Boss.

"Really? So, how's your pickup been running?"

* * *

"Okay, now listen, Joe. You can push me to that next chair, but no further. Do you understand?"

"Sure; let's go."

I released my breaks, and Joe immediately began pushing me faster than any speeding bullet that Superman ever encountered.

The last thing that I remember that day was Joe yelling, "What means 'further', Daddy?" □

Financial Planning

CD Alternatives

By Timothy R. Rosiak, Certified Financial Planner

Just last week, when I was doing my banking, I realized how low interest rates are. My savings account is only paying four percent, and six-month certificates of deposit (CDs) are paying around 3.5%.

One reader recently called me and asked about possible alternatives, which spurred me to write this week's article. She is a retiree who relies upon the income from her CDs to sustain her current life-style.

Fortunately, there are many alternatives for those who traditionally invest in CDs. Your individual objectives may depend, to a certain extent, upon your stage in life. For example:

- If you are under age 40, you may be looking primarily for growth.
- In the 40-to-50 age range, you might want to concentrate on growth, income, and capital preservation.
- Between 50 and 60, you may seek capital preservation, income, and some growth.
- If you're over age 60, your concerns will generally focus on capital preservation and income.

For those interested primarily in the growth of their money, investing in stocks or a stock mutual fund may produce a higher return over the long term versus that of a CD. By buying stock mutual funds, you get automatic diversification and the expertise of the fund managers. Remember, also, that different funds have different objectives, so be sure to find one that fits your goals and objectives.

For those individuals looking for additional income, we could consider corporate bonds, municipal bonds (which provide tax-exempt interest), U.S. Treasury bonds, or a bond mutual fund. Current yield: five percent to 8.5%.

I particularly like the income mutual funds since they offer the opportunity for achieving both safety and diversification, as well as providing additional income.

Another option might be a single premium deferred annuity. Current yield: 6.6%.

Basically, you pay for the annuity with an up-front payment and the money grows without any current taxation. The insurance company issuing the annuity guarantees a rate of return for one year. It then does the same thing in succeeding years.

When the annuity matures several years down the road, you can choose among a variety of pay-out options.

As I stated earlier, everyone's situation is different. What's good for one client may not necessarily be best for you. If you would like to give me a call and tell me your situation, please do—I'd be happy to help. My number at Mutual of Omaha is (313) 347-3437; ask for Tim Rosiak, Financial Planning Department. □

RHS Wrestling

Varsity: 11-11-2 JV: 9-6

Coach Norm Butler and the wrestling program have concluded another successful season, and no doubt will be in Battle Creek on March 12-14 to support Mike Scully in his efforts to become the fourth-ever State Champion from our program.

Mike finished second in the Regional competition last Saturday, losing to a young man from Plymouth-Salem whom he had previously beaten.

"Mike might have had a little letdown after teammates Dale Gehringer and Jason Drouillard both lost their matches and were knocked out of the State meet," Butler stated, "but Mike is the type of competitor that, when he gets to the State meet, he will be only concentrating on what he needs to do to win his weight class."

This season was the final year for some excellent senior wrestlers, and our program will have to work hard to replace the efforts of these young men.

We wish good luck to the following graduates leaving our wrestling program: Michael Scully, Dale Gehringer, Jason Drouillard, Jason Schmidt, and Brian McNett.

Even with the loss of these five excellent members of the 1991-92 team, all is not lost for next season, as Coach Butler returns Tim Kilgore, Toby Wilson, Brett Smith, Leroy Prince, Felton Bush, Rob Graham, Joel Elam, and Tom Welch, all of whom have varsity experience. These guys will combine with Kevin Ladach, Tim Farley, Jason Fabrizio, Andy Tordy, and Jawan Russell to make what looks to be yet another of the solid wrestling programs for which Romulus is now famous.

Congratulations to coaches Butler and Bill Garland on another fine season, as well as to Jamie Holbrook and his JV team which also had a great year.

We are all looking forward to 1993, and hope that Mike Scully will end this season with an excellent finish at Battle Creek.

Good luck, Mike!

RHS Volleyball

Varsity: 16-29 JV: 18-22

The 1992 volleyball season came to a conclusion last week, and although the record seems to indicate that this was a disappointing year, Coach Gail Coleman stated just the opposite.

"We knew, going in this year, that when you lose your whole starting lineup from the previous year, things might be a little rough – especially in the sport of volleyball, where game-like experiences can only be found in a real game, unlike basketball or softball. Given our schedule and the completely unexpected and unusual number of injuries we had this season, our girls should feel very proud of their efforts this year."

The Eagles finished their regular season in the first-year "brat" tournament in Ann Arbor. Like most of the tournaments in this area, the competition was outstanding and the Eagle players were in battles all day.

"We might have played as well as we played all year in Ann Arbor," Coleman added, "but when you are playing two league champions in your division, it's tough to make it to the finals."

The highlight of the day was a revenge victory over Ypsilanti-Lincoln. Earlier in the season, Lincoln came to our gymnasium and defeated us by scores of 15-6 and 15-12 – but it was a different story last Saturday, as the Eagles showed their season-long improvement by knocking off Ypsi by scores of 15-9 and 15-12.

Seven volleyballers ended their high-school careers last week, and coaches Gail Coleman and Kim Rose, as well as the total athletic program, would like to thank them for the many countless hours of effort and dedication that they have given to making the Romulus volleyball program so rewarding over the years.

One loss to the program's future is Charmaine Smith, who is a definite candidate to continue her volleyball career at the collegiate level. Carmita Brown also graduates and is looking to move on to the college ranks in the sport of basketball. Three-sport athletes Heide Bussard and Jenny McClure will also be going on to college after finishing their careers at Romulus as softball standouts. Sherri Rocha, having the best season of her four-year career in 1992, will take her team-high grade-point average of 3.82 on to either Madonna or Wayne State to enter the nursing field. Jennifer Trueman will also finish an outstanding athletic career at Romulus as a member of the softball program and then move on to a career in the United States Air Force. The final senior leaving the program was probably the 1992 season's biggest surprise, as Melinda Elliott just got better and better as the season progressed.

"It's too bad that Melinda is not a junior, because her talent was just starting to reach its peak as the season came to its conclusion. This was her first year in our program, and Melinda really helped our efforts this season a great deal."

The junior varsity program also ended a fine season that featured many outstanding efforts in what Coach Kim Rose called a roller-coaster year.

"We have some excellent athletes in this group, and no doubt they will even-

By Fred Coleman, CAA, Athletic Director,
Romulus Community Schools

I would like to take this opportunity to once again thank the many fans who supported the winter athletic programs at Romulus High School, and to point out that it was their behavior and sportsmanship toward our teams and our opponents that has shown why many feel that Romulus is one of the nicest places in the State to play or watch high-school sporting contests.

Many people felt that, when we instituted our strict admittance and behavior rules, we were making a mistake; but, after our second season of virtually no problems with unruly fans or totally inappropriate behavior, I cannot tell you how pleased I am with the results of these new policies.

People are coming to the games to watch, cheer, be with their friends, or just enjoy the excellent music of Mr. Jarnes and his fine band. What they are not coming to do is cause problems or see what they can get away with, and that in itself is making our contests much more enjoyable for everyone.

It wasn't a perfect year – we still had to ask a few people to leave, and our list of those we do not want in our facilities did grow a little – but, in general, this season was one of our most successful ever in terms of making our gym a place where you can come and enjoy yourself.

Next season, we will move into what is probably going to be one of the nicest facilities (if not the best facility) in this whole area – and, since we are no doubt going to be hosting events in this facility year-round, that will bring thousands of people into our community.

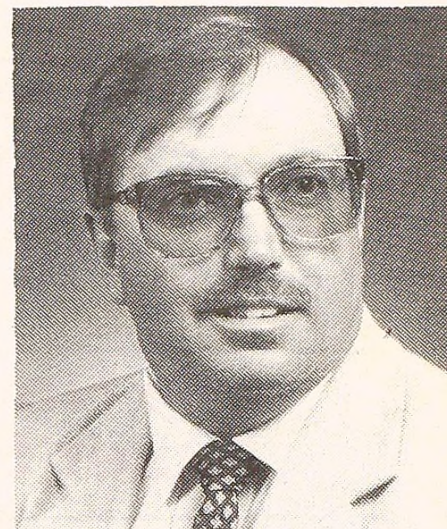

Those of us who have been around here for years have heard all the com-mentally become very good volleyball players," Rose said. "The desire to do well is there in these girls, but their work ethic in practice and their concentration during the games needs improvement."

"This is the greatest group of kids I have ever worked with," she continued. "They have fun and actually enjoy being together. Once that becomes a team effort to be the best that they can be, this group might be the most talented that we have had in many years."

With seven openings on the varsity squad next season, it appears certain that many of this group will be needed to develop the 1993 volleyball varsity program. Juniors Robyn Grishaber, Stephanie Webb, Veda Brown and Erin Fife will return to the program next season, leaving a host of spots open for the girls who work the hardest at improving their skills in the off season. Sure to be a part of the team next season are sophomores Kristen Bishop, Jamie Taylor, Lisa Decker, ments about how dangerous and "out of control" Romulus is. Well, that reputation is changing, and it is because of the people in this community and their efforts to make Romulus a great place to live and raise a family. The new facilities and the educational programs that our community members have approved for development are going to be second to none, and those of us in the Athletic Department hope to show the people who enter our facilities over the next few years just exactly what Romulus is really all about.

Your continued efforts in supporting the concept of fair play and great sportsmanship to our opponents and their fans will help to continue this swing toward a more positive reputation for Romulus. It is our goal to make this new facility a place where people from all over want to come and see an event – and, with the outstanding support and behavior that our students and fans have shown in recent years, there is no doubt that Romulus will become that kind of place.

Thanks again!!

and Shannon Wiswell, with other spots open for either young players or maybe some of the "hidden athletes" out there who decide that they would like to be some part of this outstanding program.

No matter what, it's certain that the volleyball program will be a highlight next season, as they begin their existence in the new field house. We are looking forward to the new building, the new season, and – hopefully – more new fans to the sport of volleyball. If you or your daughter is interested in finding out more about this ever-growing sport, contact the High School coaches. (And, yes, boys' volleyball will more than likely be in high-school athletics within the next few years.)

WINTER SPORTS UPDATE

evening before the largest home crowd of the 1991-92 season.

Hosting rival Ann Arbor-Huron is always a tough task for our basketball program, and Thursday's game, once again, proved to be another in a string of classic battles between these two excellent teams.

The Eagles, coming off a tough three-point loss to Ann Arbor-Pioneer on Tuesday, led Huron at half time, 19-18, but the River Rats scored eight consecutive points midway through the third period to take a lead that they never again lost.

The Parents' Night crowd of approximately 600 saw the Eagles bring the game to 48-47 with 1:05 remaining, but the River Rats scored the final four points of the contest for a 52-47 victory.

The Eagles opened the "second season" on Tuesday when they traveled to Belleville High School for a 6:30 p.m. contest with Taylor Kennedy. Assuming that the Eagles beat Kennedy (scores were not available when this issue went to press), they will more than likely play Belleville on Friday evening at 7 p.m. for the District Championship.

Parents and fans are reminded that Belleville only seats between 700 and 1,000 fans, so those planning to attend these games are encouraged to get to Belleville High at least 45 minutes before game time or they may not get a ticket.

Last week saw the conclusion of the basketball careers of three senior athletes, and we would like to take this opportunity to congratulate them on their excellent high-school careers as well as wish them well next year when they move on to bigger and better things in their lives.

Leaving the basketball program this season are Paul Adkins, Derrick Hamlin, and Anthony Quimby, all of whom contributed greatly to the success of our program over the past few years.

"Derrick and Anthony have both had excellent spurts this season," stated Coach Molloy, "and both have contributed in different games. Unfortunately, they both sat out a year for various reasons, and it's always tough to give up the experience that you lose when you don't play for a season. Paul has really come on of late and is probably playing the best of his career right now. It's just too bad that Paul is not a junior, as we would sure like to have his aggressive rebounding back next season. You cannot ask for three nicer young men, and we are very proud of the accomplishments that these three have made for our program and, more importantly, for themselves as student-athletes."

The 1993 Eagle season will open the brand-new field house, and the team that Coach Molloy will put together should be one that our fans will not want to miss.

Daniel Winston, Tyzedd Bowles, Jeff Smith, Yancy Yharbrough, Roger Williams, Robb Thompson, Tim Burns, Bob Bergeron, Kairon Davis, and Brian Molenda will all return to the 1993 squad.

Coach Mike Kowalski's JV team concluded their 1992 season with victories over Pioneer and Huron, and finished an excellent season at 15-5.

From that team, Coach Molloy will have sophomores Keith Parks, Lajuan Wilson, Phillip Franklin, Chris Worthy, Curtis Sims, Rodney Smith, Maurice Hatcher, and Carlos McPherson to choose from in filling the empty positions on the varsity squad.

"We are going to have as many as 20 excellent players trying to fill the 15 positions on the team," said Molloy, "and the decision is not going to be easy to make next season. We look for a lot of hard work out of these guys this summer and next fall - and, although we expect some of our key players of this season to be our leaders in 1993, in reality, making our team next year is going to be based on who works hardest on the floor and in the classroom over the next seven months," he concluded.

It sure is a pleasant headache to look forward to. Our new facility should be filled with exciting basketball.

One closing comment to the 1992 basketball season is a farewell to one of our athletic program's greatest fans.

Jessica Kent has cheered her final game at Romulus after accumulating six varsity letters for our cheering program.

Jessica has been a leader, both as captain of the squads in the past and as an example for our younger girls to follow, both on the field and in the classroom. Good luck next year, Jess!

Let's go, Eagles! Districts first, then on to Regionals. . . . Hope to see all of our fans there! ☐

Romulus Student-Artists Still Needed for Anti-drug Mural Project

By Kathleen Conway, Director, Romulus Adolescent Health Center, and Deborah Williamson, Mural Project Coordinator

The Romulus Adolescent Health Center is delighted to be able to work with the Romulus Arts Council on a very exciting art project this spring. The Center and the Council are co-sponsoring the painting of a mural which will be the artistic creation of 18 student-artists from the Romulus community. The student-artists will be working with local artist Dave Paczkowski and a member of the Romulus Arts Council. The artists will gather on several Saturday afternoons to design and paint the mural.

The mural will express the student-artists' thoughts, feelings, experiences, hopes, fears, and worries regarding drug and alcohol abuse among young people.

The project is funded through a gift from the Mayor's Drug Task Force and other funds obtained through the Health Center. Student-artists will be paid a stipend for their work on the mural.

The mural itself will be painted on sturdy material that will form a three-panel, movable piece of art that can hang or be displayed throughout the City, such as at City Hall, the Library, schools, or other public buildings, traveling throughout the City. The community will be invited to an opening reception when the mural is completed. Plans are for the mural to be finished by the middle of May and to begin display in the City at that time.

Patricia Ditsch of the Romulus Arts Council has been instrumental in getting involvement from student-artists throughout the community. The artists who have already agreed to be part of the mural project include: fifth-graders Richard Tripp, Kevin Wilson, Alec Hance, Conway Norwood, and Danielle Judy; sixth-graders ers Randy Olson, Reginald Williams, Jr., and Rebecca Oleszkowski; seventh-grader Theodore Kesner; eighth-grader Shawna Booth; freshman Jesse Morgan; junior Ryan Darnell; and senior Sheree Laney. We still have room for several more artists to work on the project, specifically in the sixth, seventh, eighth, and tenth grades. If you know of a young artist who would be interested in working with this project, please call the Romulus Adolescent Health Center at 941-1400 and ask for Debbie Williamson.

The Health Center and the Arts Council are very excited about this project and its potential for visually displaying, to the community, the concerns of the young people regarding alcohol and other drugs. We hope that you will take the time to see the mural when it is displayed.

Watch for information and announcements about the opening reception and unveiling in early spring.

Scientists say they've found gene for MD

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists said today they have discovered a genetic abnormality that apparently causes the most common adult form of muscular dystrophy. The finding should help the search for a treatment and improve diagnosis of the inherited disease before symptoms appear or before a carrier of the defect has had children, unwittingly passing along the flawed gene, experts said. The researchers also found that the genetic abnormality was of a type that causes the disease to become more severe with each successive generation.
